Callum and Maestro Giuseppe have a conversation in which Joseph explains that during the cold massacre Constantine had been wounded to death and was dying, so he put him soul of him in a child's body. That child was callum. Call finds, moreover, that the father suspects that is the enemy of death as during the massacre after the soul of Constantine had entered the call body, the call mother had written the words, 'kill the baby' on the ice where She lay almost dead. Jasper and Tamara escaped the master's clutches Joseph and notice the teaching about the place to call. Preparing for the fourth War Maga, Reception The first book of the series, the iron process, was well received. Kirkus reviews praised the "refreshing" setting and characters, [4] and a publisher has revised the preferred revision, provided that the "string of disturbing revelations" would leave readers who want more. [5] Although Kirkus has noticed that similarities with Harry Potter can be distracted, a reviewer to the Daily Telegraph wrote that the book "cleverly moves in the gap" left by the JK Rowling series. [6] In 2012, Constantin Film acquired production rights. [7] Black and Clare will adapt to the script and serves as executive producers. [8] Constantin is one of the productive companies behind another adaptation of Clare's, mortal instruments: cities of the bones and the production company for its shadowhunter television adaptation on Freeform.
