Is gta online still getting updates

If you've just got GTA 5 for free from the Epic Games Store and you're jumping into GTA Online for the first time, get ready for some big differences. GTA Online is a packed multiplayer experience with almost seven years' worth of updates. It's a big, complicated game with an absolutely dizzying array of vehicles, businesses and activities to check out. Crucially, too, you're sharing the world with up to 29 other players, which takes a big of getting used to. GTA Online will eat as many hours as you want to put into it, with deep progression systems, loads of expensive properties to buy and tons of vehicles to collect. Over the years, we've spent a fair few hours with GTA Online, and wanted to share our advice for how newcomers can play the game without having a bad time. Hopefully you'll find this useful.(Image credit: Rockstar Games)The key with GTA Online is finding friends you can regularly enjoy playing with. This makes so many activities in the game easier, more lucrative and more fun. Playing GTA Online solo is possible, but it's half the experience in a lot of ways. When you start GTA Online, you create a character, do a tutorial and are unleashed into Los Santos. Epic's giveaway of GTA 5 comes with the Criminal Enterprise Starter pack, a bumper selection of goodies to get you started in GTA Online. This gives you a number of free items, including a suite of weapons and vehicles to use. Rockstar Games explains what comes with the pack here. Note, though, that we played GTA Online long before this pack existed, and can't completely vouch for how this affects the early part of the online experience. You also get an executive office, a gunrunning bunker and a biker gang hideout, all of which offer various ways to make you more money from the start. You can access activities in each of these locations from the laptop you'll find inside each building. Epic's free edition of GTA will also grant you a million dollars of free in-game currency, though it'll take a week or so to appear in your account. We think you should spend $200,000 of that on an in-game apartment which has the ability to initiate heists, and we'll explain why below. In terms of aspirational vehicles, military chopper the Buzzard is a good one to aim for. That costs $1.75 million, so you'll need to save up a bit, but it'll quickly get you around the map and provide firepower from the sky. There are reasons you'll want to increase your rank (that is, your level) quickly when starting GTA Online. Going up a few ranks will lead to characters like Simeon and Lamar contacting you with missions via your phone, giving you more ways to unlock money and RP, GTA's version of experience points. Weapon purchases are also tied to your rank. If you want to buy a Micro SMG from a weapon store, for example, you need to be rank 5 first. So it's worth trying to get through those early levels quickly.2. GTA Online heists are a good way to make money, and the most fun part of the game(Image credit: Rockstar Games)GTA has five heists (including a tutorial heist), and if you're new to the game, you owe it to yourself to check them out. They're like the heists in GTA 5's main story, only they involve four players taking part in one mission simultaneously. They still represent the best GTA experiences you can have in any game in the series. To access heists, you either need to join another player's heist, or reach level 12 in-game and host your own. Crucially, you'll want three other friends to play the heists with (you can matchmaking, but it's precarious, and playing all four heists with the same crew nets you a bonus payout). That hopefully won't be too much of a challenge if you know other people who have grabbed the game for free and have half-decent PCs.One of your group of four will need what's called a High-End apartment in GTA Online, which apparently doesn't come with the Criminal Enterprise Starter Pack. This is how you host a heist. You can buy this by bringing up your phone in-game, going to the internet browser and clicking on Money and Services. Dynasty 8 is the online store that sells apartments in-game. The cheapest apartment to feature a hoist room is Del Perro Heights, which is $200,000, easily covered by the free money gifted by Rockstar with this version of the game. Again, to host a heist, you need to be rank 12 or higher. It's not a bad idea for all players involved to at least reach rank 12, to ensure everyone is up to the challenge of these large-scale missions. With three other players in your crew, you can enter the heist room in your new apartment and begin these missions strands. Each heist is divided into separate setup stages with a finale, and you get a first-time bonus payout for finishing them all (and another for finishing them in order). Note that each heist has a setup cost, which you'll easily be able to afford if you haven't blown all your free million dollars of in-game currency at once. You'll easily make this setup money back from completing each one. When you get deeper into the game, you can think about taking on the Doomsday and Diamond Casino Heists, too, but for now tackling the basic heists is all you need to worry about. Repeating them on higher difficulties earns you bigger payouts. If you're a solo player, heists are a less dependable source of income, and you might want to try this excellent Reddit guide on playing GTA alone. 3. Don't bother with competitive modes unless they're paying double experience and cash(Image credit: Rockstar Games)GTA Online has so many online competitive modes (called Adversary Modes), but they're rarely as fun as doing activities in the open world with friends. Still, there are reasons you'll want to play them, especially if you're new to the game. Each week, Rockstar usually highlights a certain Adversary Mode with double the rewards (not this week, though, as the double bonus is for gunrunning sell missions). This will allow you to quickly increase your rank and make a bit of cash while you take part. Look out for messages on your phone that invite you to adversary modes, and click on them to enter a matchmaking screen. Again, they're only really worth focusing on when the payout is doubled. Don't burn yourself out on PvP, because it's not the best part of GTA Online, even though some of the modes can be pretty fun. 4. You can have your cars delivered at any time(Image credit: Rockstar Games)This is far from a headline feature, but it's handy to know in case you miss the game's explanation of how it works. Bring up your phone, click on the Mechanic name in your contacts, call him and you can have any of your stored vehicles brought to you, usually a short walk from where you're standing. You'll use this countless times as you play GTA to save time, and it's worth knowing. 5. Strangers will try and grief you, so turn on Passive Mode(Image credit: Rockstar)Griefing is almost baked into the design of GTA Online. If you want to explore Los Santos without other players being able to run it for you, press 'M' on your keyboard to bring up what's called the Interactions menu. From here, scroll down to Passive Mode and turn it on. This will stop players from being able to shoot you. Note, though, that a whole bunch of GTA Online activities require you to play in a public server and switch Passive Mode off. Interrupting other players' fun is the lifeblood of GTA Online, and you will end up doing it yourself, too. It's why it's such a relief on those rare occasions when you find an empty server, so you can make a bit of money without the threat of someone airstriking you mid-mission. It's a temporary solution, then, but it will make the act of exploring the world a bit less irritating in your first hours with the game. 6. Resist buying Shark Cards unless you get deep into the game(Image credit: Rockstar Games)Everything in GTA Online can be paid for with in-game currency, but earning money is time-consuming in this game, especially if you want to buy some of the fancier vehicles that cost millions of in-game dollars. Rockstar sells in-game currency in the form of Shark Cards, giving you a quick cash injection to get you the thing you want. You don't need to buy these to have a good time in GTA Online, though. If you throw hours upon hours at GTA Online, you can maybe justify spending a little every now and then for that car, business or apartment you want, especially since you got the game for free from Epic. Ultimately, though, buying digital currency is unlikely to enhance your experience with the game unless you're playing it all the time. 7. Focus on the activities you enjoy(Image credit: Future/Rockstar Games)When you start GTA Online, it can take some adjustment to the new status quo. There's so much to do on the map and you're constantly pinged with new activities on your phone. Not everything in the game is great, but you don't have to play all of it to have a good time. Owning a nightclub isn't as fun as it should be, for example, even if the real DJs that play there are a cool touch. Owning a hangar is really neat, especially with some of the cool customizable aircraft available, but it's a very expensive pursuit that shouldn't be your priority early on. Some of the vehicles you can buy look awesome, but earning enough currency to unlock them can take hours and hours. The heists are the clear standout in GTA Online in terms of actual early game fun stuff. Some of the different businesses you can buy do have fun activities associated with them depending on what they are (and this free edition should give you plenty of businesses to sample), but there's also a hell of a lot of driving from one side of the map to the other for so many of the missions in the game. Try not to fall into a pattern where you feel like you're stuck in a grind. (Image credit: Rockstar)Over the past few years, Rockstar has become more and more generous in giving out free GTA money, just for logging on during a certain period. At the start of this year it gave away $2 million just for turning the game on twice in two weeks. Keep an eye on Rockstar Games' social channels for any similar promotions. They're not that regular, but they'll usually occur a few times a year, and if you're new to the game, it'll be enough cash to make a serious difference. You can let these build up and buy a silly vehicle that you really want.Rockstar is currently giving away $500,000 to all players who log in during May 2020. (Image credit: Rockstar Games) Rockstar has released the latest major update to Grand Theft Auto Online, which adds new vehicles, missions and a whole new island to the game's uber-successful multiplayer component.The Cayo Perico Heist introduces players to (you guessed it) an eponymous heist on the sprawling island of Cayo Perico, and adds a suitably-extravagant arsenal of new gear – including a giant, soviet-era submarine, no less.Despite seven years of continuous updates since its release back in 2013, GTA 5 has never seen the addition of an entirely new land mass in either its singleplayer or multiplayer components. Beyond updates bringing new areas to explore – like the casino or giant yachts – players have been limited (though “limited” seems the wrong word) to the city and suburbs of Los Santos.Now, The Cayo Perico Heist update brings access to a brand-new region, filled with new flora, fauna and areas to explore. According to Rockstar's patch notes, the island itself is only accessible during the new heist missions, but the “beach” can be revisited at a later date. It's as yet unclear whether the island will remain open for exploration in its entirety once players beat the heist. The heist itself sees players complete the customary prep missions in Los Santos before infiltrating and robbing a private island fortress. Rockstar has continued its commitment to recognising those who prefer to run things solo by allowing players to complete the heist unaccompanied, but bear in mind the loot rewards will be limited. The never-ending GTARockstar has timed the update – which it describes as its “biggest ever” – to whet the appetite of players excited by GTA 5's upcoming arrival on next-generation consoles. When the game arrives on PS5 and Xbox Series X in late 2021, it will have survived – and thrived – across three separate console generations. Seven years, 130 million copies and hundreds of updates later, GTA 5 looks likely to continue its remarkable popularity by taking advantage of the improvements in scope and performance made possible by the industry's new hardware. According to the first trailer, the game will (once again) be “expanded and enhanced” for next-gen consoles, which likely means instantaneous matchmaking and loading, greater graphical fidelity and the ability to finally run at 60fps on consoles. It's clear something big is coming for GTA 5, but we'll have to wait for more details as to what exactly that is. In any case, with Rockstar's latest Cayo Perico update, something big is already here. A first step towards GTA 6, perhaps?Why would Rockstar release GTA 6 soon? GTA Online is a gold mine What is a will? A will is a legal document you use to leave property to close family members, friends, or charities. In your will, you name beneficiaries to inherit your property, an executor to wrap up your estate, guardians to care for your young children, and caretakers to own and care for your pet. You can set up a trust for money inherited by children. You can also forgive debts owed to you and state how you want your debts, expenses, and taxes to be paid. To begin creating your will, visit the Nolo's Online Will page at the Nolo website. Back to top What can I do with this will? With this will you can: Name beneficiaries (and alternate beneficiaries) to inherit your property. Name a guardian to care for your young children. Create a trust or a custodianship and choose an adult to manage your children's property. Cancel debts others owe to you. State how your debts, expenses, and taxes are to be paid. Name an executor to carry out the terms of your will. Name a caretaker for your pet. Back to top What information do I need to make my will? It will be easier to make your will if you've gathered some information first: a rough inventory of your property (but if you plan to leave everything to one or a few people, you can skip this) a list of beneficiaries -- that is, the people who will get your property a list of alternate beneficiaries -- the people who will inherit your property if your first-choice beneficiary dies before you if you have young children, a list of your first and second choices for guardian a list of your first and second choices for executor contact information for people you name as guardian, executor, or caretaker for your pet information about debts that you want to forgive, including the date you lent the money and the amount you want to forgive account numbers and locations of any accounts you want used to pay debts, expenses, and taxes Back to top How long will it take to make my will? You could make a very basic will in just a few minutes. But a will is an important document; don't rush. Put aside an hour or two to think about your wishes and make your will. Back to top How long will you store my personal information? After you purchase your will, Nolo stores your personal information for one year. During that time, you can return to Nolo's Online Legal Forms to change your will or print copies for your reference. If you do not want Nolo to keep your personal information, you can delete it at any time. Back to top What if I have questions along the way? Nolo's Online Legal Forms provides extensive legal and practical information to help you every step of the way. On the right side of every screen in the interview, you'll see information about the choices you're making right then. Back to top What will my completed will look like? Click the link below to see a sample will. Of course, this is just a sample; your document will reflect your property, your circumstances, and your state's laws. Sample will Back to top What do I do with my completed will? You need to sign your will in front of two adults who do not inherit under your will. These people don't need to read the will, but each must sign it as a witness. Store this original document in a safe place, such as a fire-proof box. (Complete signing instructions will print out with your finished will.) Back to top Can I make copies of my completed will? It's fine to give a copy of your will to your executor or other loved ones for informational purposes, but do this only with unsigned copies so it's absolutely clear that the copy isn't a legally effective will. (It's a good idea to store one unsigned copy with your signed document, in case you need to make copies later.) Do not sign more than one copy of the will. Doing so creates more than one original document and could cause confusion after your death. Back to top What if I want to change something later? You have access to your Nolo's Online Legal Forms will for a full year from the purchase date. During that period, you can make revisions as needed. To revise your will after you've purchased it, sign in, and select the document you want to edit on your Nolo's Online Legal Forms home page. You can't edit your completed document directly -- you'll need to find the document interview screen that has the answer you want to change and do it there. If you revise your will after finalizing an earlier version, you'll need to sign it and have it witnessed again - as you did with the earlier version. Nolo's Online Will always prints out with instructions that explain how to finalize your will. Back to top What other estate planning documents might I need? In addition to a will, you might consider making: a living trust (whose main advantage is to avoid probate court proceedings after your death), a health care directive (to appoint someone to make health-related decisions if you become too ill to do it), and a power of attorney (to allow a trusted person to arrange your affairs if you can't). Learn more about these documents and how they can help your family at nolo.com. You can make a living trust online now with Nolo's Online Living Trust. Back to top Is it safe to make a will without a lawyer? Making a will rarely involves complicated legal rules, and if you're like most people, you won't need a lawyer. It's up to you to leave your property however you like. Most people do not find this task too difficult. We'll walk you step-by-step through the process of making your own legal will. And if a situation arises in which you may benefit from the advice of a lawyer or other expert, we'll be the first to tell you. If you do decide to get help from an attorney, let Nolo's Lawyer Directory take the guesswork out of finding a great lawyer. Back to top Is this will right for me? The Nolo's Online Legal Forms Will is a straightforward, legally valid document. It should work well for most people with typical assets such as a house, a car, savings, and investments. It's always fine to make a simple will -- everybody needs one. But there are some situations in which you may need more than a simple will and should get expert advice or, at the least, investigate your options. For example: If you think that you or your spouse may leave assets worth more than $5 million, your estate may owe federal estate tax, and you should investigate tax-saving strategies. If you anticipate family fights, see a lawyer for advice on how to stave off bad feelings and legal battles. If you want to set up a long-term trust for a child with special needs, find out how you can provide for your child without jeopardizing government benefits. See Special Needs Trusts by Stephen Elias and Kevin Urbatsch (Nolo). Nolo's Online Will is not appropriate for residents of Louisiana or the U.S. territories. You must be at least 18 years old and of sound mind (meaning you know what you own and who you want to leave it to) to make a valid will. For in-depth information about estate planning, see Plan Your Estate by best-selling author Denis Clifford. Back to top Why can't I make Nolo's Online Will in Louisiana? Nolo does not provide estate planning products for Louisiana. Louisiana's estate planning laws differ significantly from estate planning laws in the other 49 states. Louisiana based its laws on the Napoleonic code, while the other states based their laws on English common law, and Louisiana's estate planning laws remain unique. If you have questions about estate planning in Louisiana, see a local lawyer. Back to top
