

Duco battery charger instructions

A car battery contains chemicals that produce hydrogen gas during use. The hydrogen gas is volatile and has been known to explode under certain conditions, causing serious injuries. For example, a car battery can explode while starting the car, while jumping by starting or accidentally short-circuited the terminals with a screwdriver. In fact, under certain conditions, the car battery can explode while simply sitting in a car parked or on a table [Source: charger-charger. By sending this mind, here is how to safely use a car charger: use the correct charger for your special car battery. Check the car owner's manual for information (or ask for the auto retailer or automatic trusted mechanic). Read the charger manual and make sure you understand how the charger works and which precautions are needed. Pay close attention to all warnings. Remove both battery cables from the battery terminals. First remove the negative cable (black) and then the positive cable (red). Check that the charger is not connected to an electrical outlet and that the power switch is deactivated the positive charger cable (usually pred) to the positive (+) battery terminal and the negative cable (from the battery slowly (lifting charge) or quickly. Select a lower charging voltage and a current for a rivole charge and a higher setting for a fastest charger. Check the charger manual for the correct settings. Note that the recharge of the dining room provides the best results. Select if the charger will be performed for a specific amount of time or turn off automatically when the battery is loaded. Not all chargers have this feature. Flow the charger or cables in $\hat{a} \in$
